In an RC-2 Notice dated September 28, over limit contributions to the primary campaign were cited from four contributors. All of those over-limit contributions should have been designated as contributions to the General election campaign. At the time the contributions were solicited, the contributors were made aware that they had given the maximum to the primary campaign and that the contributions were being solicited for the General election campaign. We have signed statements to that effect from two of the contributors - John Rudi and Rudolph Rasin. The third contributor, Jack Spitzer, is now deceased. The remaining contributor, Charlotte Spitzer, who is the spouse of the deceased, was unreachable. Therefore the campaign has issued a refund check to the surviving spouse for the over limit amount given by her late husband and herself. A photocopy of that check, along with copies of the statements from the other two contributors are being sent via mail to the FEC Analyst who authored the review letter.
